TRIBUTE OF OFFICIAL ASSOCIATES State Officials Meet and Adopt a Fitting Memorial to the Dead Governor. At the meeting of the State officers, held vesterday morning at 9 o'clock, the following memorial, prepared by Secretary Matthews, Statistician Peelle and Auditor Henderson, was unanimously adopted:

In the death of Gov. Alvin P. Hovey the State has lost an honest, faithful and upright executive-an honored son, whose distinguished abilwhose life has exemplified the possibilities of American citizenship. From the humble heritage of a poor man's son, by his own resources of mind and indomitable energy, he rose, step by step, from a farmer's lad to be Governor of the Commonwealth of Indiana. Whether as a member of the Constitutional Convention, a circuit udge, a member of the Supreme Bench, an United States attorney, a colonel in the army, a general at Champion's Hill, a minister to Peru, a Representative in Congress, or Governor of his native State, he filled every station creditably and with no shadow of dishonor. A plain, blunt man-he shirked no duty, however unpleasant. He possessed a nature at once courageous, frank and open. In his livelier moods he was companionable and at all times kindly and sympathetic. His intercourse with his fellow State officers was uniformly courteous and considerate, and in his death there comes to us a sense of personal be-

MEETING OF THE STATE BAR. Memorial Adopted and Many Speeches Made in Enlogy of the Dead Governor.

Yesterday morning, at 10 o'clock, over two hundred members of the State Bar Association from this and other cities met in the United States Court-room to adopt a memorial over the death of Governor Alvin P. Hovey. W. A. Ketcham, president of the Bar association, called the meeting to order and made a motion that Judge W. A. Woods should preside over the meeting. The motion prevailed, and then Robert Graham, of Noblesville, and R. O. Hawkins, of this city, were elected secretaries. In taking the chair, Judge death, and alluded to his distinguished

The bar of the State of Indiana are called upon to mourn the loss of one of their number, who for more than a generation has occupied a large space in the history of the State and of the Nation, in many and varied relations-as lawyer, as member of the Constitutional Convention, as judge, both at nisi prins and of the Supreme Court, as district attorney of the United States for this district, in the diplomatic corps of the United States, as general of volunteers, as member of Congress and as Governor of his State, in all of which he filled the full measure of responsibility thereto attached.

Gov. Alvin P. Hovey was a typical Indianian; born in the State, and, almost simultaneous with the birth of the State, he grew its growth; at all times loving the State, and in return loved, trusted, respected and honored by the people of the State. Of humble parentage, he yet inherited from them those sterling qualities of heart and of mind which developed into a manly character and enabled him to meet and honorably and worthily perform the duties of the many high and important stations to which he was called by his fellow-citizens and by the State and Nation. Of his public, political and military history, so well known to the people of the State, and so fully and promptly published by the daily press, it is not the prov mee of this memorial to speak. This occasion demands a consideration of his character as a lawyer. The facilities for acquiring the ordipary rudiments of learning in a new State, much less for academic or collegiate education, were, at best, meager. Added to this, Governor Hovey was further hindered by lack of financial resources and by having the support of a widowed mother and fatheriess family cast upon him. Yet, notwithstanding such discouragements, fired by an earnest and honorable ambition to make the most of his abilities, and conscious of possessing them, he prosecuted his studies at night, after laborious bodily toil through the day, either alone or with the advantage of such private tutorage as he was able to secure. He osecuted them with such earnestness and perdistency of purpose that he really became a master of the English language, as is fully shown by his opinious while judge of the Supreme Court, and in his various State papers. He studied law under Judge Pitcher, and was admitted to the bar of Posey county in the year 1842. He was not a brilliant advocate, but his knowledge of the principles of the law was such that he speedily won the confidence of the bar and bench of his circuit, and secured a lucrative practice. As a result he was elected a member of one of the most important assemblies that ever convened in the State of Indiana, the Constitutional Convention of 1851. Although one of the youngest members of that body, com posed of the most eminent and able men of the state, he soon took prominent place; and while net a frequent speaker in that convention, yet

Shortly thereafter he was appointed by Gov-ernor Wright judge of his circuit, and before his term as such had expired was appointed by the same Governor judge of the Supreme Court of the State. His whole mature life when not engaged in the performance of public duties was spent in the practice of law in the county at which he was admitted to the bar. He had posttive and lofty ideas and the highest estimate of the honors and responsibilities attaching to the members of the legal profession, and his whole life was governed by these convictions.

when he did address that body he spoke with such force and elearness as to win the confidence and respect of all his associates.

When he came to administer the laws of the State as its chief executive he brought to the performance of those duties the same concepons of the law, and an earnest conviction that the maintenance of the constitutional division and distribution of powers among the several departments of government was essential to the safety of the State, and, actuated thereby, most sturdily and stubbornly contested what he believed to be encroachments upon the executive powers. No one has ever doubted the honesty of his purpose in so doing, and, doubtless, it is for the welfare of the State that this line of demarcation between the powers and duties of the several departments should be kept clear After a long, and useful, and honorable life, he

Attorney-general Smith, who was delegated to make the official announcement of Governor Hovey's death, said among other things, that he performed the duty assigned to him with feelings of regret and sorrow for the death of a man who had for so long borne a conspicuous part in the civic and military affairs of the State and Nation. He then alluded to the many important offices in the gift of the State which Governor Hovey had filled with credit to himself and to the State, and

Finch, who spoke of a conversation he had with Governor Hovey a few weeks before his death, in which he had spoken of his carreer and dwelt upon his experiences at the bar and on the bench with much earnestness. He also spoke of Governor Hovey's great love of poetry and of his companionable temperament. Albert J. Beveridge was the next speaker, and among other things he said: In Governor Hovey's death a man of fron has passel away. He was a man whose character was as high as his heart was strong; his soul was pure and his mind was clear. He was a natural soldier. Writing from the front, Charles A. Dana, now editor of the New York Sun, and during the war assistant secretary to Stanton, said: "Alvin P. Hovey is the ablest division general and one of the ablest soldiers at the front." "At the front" was the key to his career. He always stood upon the heights. He always led the charge. The smoke of battle was to him the light of day; he never saw so clearly as when the clouds of conflict were terrible and dense. He saved the day at Champion's Hil, and more than any other man, excepting possibly Morton, he saved Indiana from the shame and disgrace of treason at home. And so he always moved as if the bugles were ealing and his men were on the march. Thus was that those who did not know him well thought him imperious, and even sometimes harsh. It was not so. He was as gentle as he was brave; he was as tender as be was true. For his friends nothing was a sacrifice; for his family he poured out in affection all the riches of his strong, fierce soul; for his grandchildren his love rose to the heights of poetry and tears. Mr. Beveridge also spoke of the dead Governor as a lawyer, and accorded him a high place in the profession. Concluding, he said: He is gone. A great, kind, loving, fearless soul is now among the stars. He did not fear that Buai friend of all the race, called Death. Handin-hand be had walked with him many times be fore. Often he has said that he has been ready any moment these fifty years. He is gone; but assured it is, he nevertheless is living still. But we shall see him no more; we can only remember, revere and love. Major Mitchell next made a few remarks about the character of Governor Hovey's friendship, and District Attorney Smiley

N. Chambers said: My recollection is that the first political meet-ing I ever attended was at Edwardsport, at a joint discussion between the deceased and Judge W. E. Niblack. This was in 1858, and they were op-posing candidates for Congress in the old First

As a citizen, as a member of the legal profession, a jurist, a soldier, a legislator and Governor, he has met the fullest measure of duty which these various positions imposed upon him. The people of the State at large, irrespective of party, mourn his death. I apprehend, however, that the loss will fall the heaviest upon the old soldiers of the State-that, while others mourn sincerely,

The members of the legal profession respected. him and admired him for his ability and his integrity as a lawyer. The citizens of the State of all classes were proud of him as a product of Hooster soil and Hoosier institutions. He was a bright example of what a boy, although in the environments of povertr, may make of himself by determination and resolute character. But the old soldiers love him and revere him as a comrade, as one who participated with them in sacrifices, and labors, and efforts for the prescr-

Captain Ritter, the last speaker, stated that Governor Hovey had helped to make the Constitution of the State, and had also helped to construe it. In speaking of him regarding the soldiers, he said: "He was their general in war, but in peace was their friend, their comrade and their advocate."

WORDS OF SYMPATRY.

Many Telegrams Deploring Governor Hovey's Death Received from Prominent Persons. Telegrams of condolence and sympathy continued to pour in from all parts of the country. Among them was one from President Harrison.

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, Nov. 24. M. G. McLain-The news of the death of Gov. Hovey, which your telegram conveys, fills my heart with sorrow. He had served his country with rare devotedness and distinction in high civil and military offices, and will be sincerely mourned as a brave comrade and a generous friend by all who knew him. CRAWFORDSVILLE, Nov. 24. Mal. M. G. McLain-Impossible for me to go Sorry. The Governor is only a day's march ahead of us. Will overtake him.

LEW WALLACE. Senator Thomas E. Boyd, of Noblesville said: "Governor Hovey's death has shocked me beyond that of any death of which I have heard in Indiana. He was my personal and intimate friend. Indiana's lose cannot be estimated. The Grand Army of the Republic has indeed lost its best friend. He was a brave man, an honest citizen, a grand soldier and a patriot. The Indianapolis Journal of the 24th mst. has certainly recorded accurately and correctly the life and story of a great soldier-one of Indiana's most favored and loved citizens. General Hovey's service will live forever in the hearts of his comrades. He was with the prince of soldiers-General Grant-on the bloody field of Shileh; in the Vicksburg campaign, where men's souls were tried; with Sherman in his memorable march to the sea; at Allatoons, Resaca, at Rockey-face Ridge, at Datton and other places. Be it said to General Hovey's everlasting credit that he never forgot his comrades, and was always their steadfast friend. As chief executive of Indiana he has ably and conscientiously discharged all his duties. As a Republican he was fearless, bold and aggressive. Indiana, indeed, mourns the loss of her great dead."

Colonel Walker, department commander gram from A. D. Vanosdol, of Madison: "Please convey my sympathy to Governor Hovey's family in the irreparable loss they have sustained by his death. The Nation has lost a patriot, the State a faithful, just, conscientions and fearless executive, and the Union soldier a brave comrade, whose devotion to their interests was untiring, never relaxing his efforts in their behalf. Ex-Governor Foraker, of Ohio, telegraphed from Washington: "Accept assurance of my deepest sympathies in the death of Governor Hovey. The whole country is bereaved."

Perry S. Heath, a member of the Governor's staff, sent this from Washington: "Express my most profound sorrow to the family of Governor Hovey over the irreparable loss they have sustained in his death. I lost a true friend, and the country a brave patriot. I would attend the funeral, but it is impossible to leave here."

ACTION OF THE COUNCIL.

Memorial and Resolutions Adopted and a Committee Selected to Attend the Funeral. The Common Council met last night to take action regarding the death of Alvin P. Hovey, Governor of Indians. President Yontz took the chair, and thirteen members, constituting a quorum, answered to their names. The following communication from Mayor Thomas L. Sullivan, addressed to the Council, was read and adopted:

Gentlemen-Alvin P. Hovey, late Governor of Indiana, who died in this city yesterday, was a man distinguished in the State and Nation. He helped make the Constitution of the State; sat in the national Congress, and, for nearly three years, was Governor of Indiana. He held high command in the Union army during the war of the rebellion, and, both as a civilian and soldier, served his country with distinction As a mark of respect for the departed official, I respectfully recommend that your honorable body appint a committee of your own members to accompany the remains to their final resting-place. and that you take such other action as in your judgment is fitting for the capital of Indiana upon the occasion of the death of the chief executive of the State. The following memorial and resolutions, offered by Councilman Pearson, were then adopted by a standing vote:

23, inst, was a man of great eminence in the military and political history of the country. In all positions he filled he was both able and patriotic; therefore, be it Resolved. By the Common Council of the city of Indianapolis that in whatever light the life of the dead soldier and statesman be viewed a well-poised man is seen - one true to his convicfions, and courageous in carrying them out. In him the young men of the State have an example of the eminence that may be at ained in this Republic of ours. No fortuitous circumstances attended his birth, yet he reached a high standing among the public men of his day.
Resolved, That a committee of three, of which the president of the Council shall be chairman, the others to be selected by him, be appointed to act as a guard of honor on behalf of the Council, who shall accompany the remains to Mount Vernon and assist in consigning them to their final resting place. Resolved, That a copy of this memorial, properly certified, be furnished the family of the deceased Covernor. President Yontz appointed Messrs. Pearson and Burns as the other members of the committee, and the Council adjourned. A Queer Coincidence. It is a peculiar coincidence that Governor Hovey's illness was aggravated and his death hastened by a cold contracted in the very town where he lost so many brave men in the days of the war. It was at Vicksburg in June, 1863, that General Hovey met with such a loss at Champion's When the party arrived at Vickson Monday night, the its return month, on from the Mexican trip, it was in the midst of a raging storm of hail and snow, and a member of the Governor's staff asked him if he would like to remain over till the next day, and visit the old battle-field of Champion's Hill. He replied "No. I have no desire to revisit the scenes where so many of my brave boys lost their lives. It would be no pleasure to me." That very night, at Vicksburg, the Governor contracted a severe cold, which, with the heart depression, worked to his basty and ultimate end.

Courts Adjourned at Wabash. The Journal's correspondent at Wabash,

The intelligence of the death of Governor Hovey was received with unfelgned regret by the people of this city. Out of respect for his memory the Circuit Court adjourned until Friday, and a committee composed of Hon. Alva H. Taylor, Capt. Alex. Hess and Major Kidd, was appointed by Judge shively to draft appropriate esolutions. The G. A. R. post here will also hold memorial services.

George H. Thomas Post. George H. Thomas Post, G. A. R., held a meeting last night and appointed Captain Armstrong, George W. Spahr and ex-Mayor McMaster a committee to draft appropriate resolutions of respect for the memory of Governor Hovey. A set of resolutions were prepared and adopted.

The Meeting-Place. All the members of local military companies and G. A. R. posts who accompany the remains of Governor Hovey to Mount Vernon are expected to assemble at the south entrance to the Bates House promytly at 9 o'clock this morning.

United States Court Adjourned. After the disposal of business for the morning hour yesterday Judge Woods adjourned the United States District Court in respect to the late Gov. A. P. Hovey, the adjournment being until this morning.

A Question of Propriety.

To the Editor of the Indianapolis Journal: Is it seemly and proper, when our chief executive officer hes dead in our city, that we should go on with parties, receptions and amusements, just as though nothing whatever of importance had happened? Could we not at least restrain ourselves until his remains have been placed in the zation and contrast ourselves with kinglyruled countries, and lay sweet unction to souls that we far excel them. and we go through paroxysmal vaporings concerning our country; and at same time we manifest respect whatever for the office of our own creation. We choose from our citizens a typical Indianian-a just, brave, noble man-to be our Governor. He conducts himself in office in a manner creditable to our State and Nation. He dies in office. with barness on, and yet, while lying dead at our capital, no cossation of amusements takes place, and, what is still more remarkable, the police force, a State institution. kicks up its heels at a public ball. What texts might this furnish for Thanksgiving sermons! Is this Liberty enlightening the world? J. L. T. Indianapolis, Nov. 24.

INDIANA'S DEAD GOVERNOR.

Esteem in Which He Was Held at Washington-Some of His Uncompleted Plans. Special to the Indianapolis Journal.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.—Not since the demise of Governor Morton has the death of a distinguished Indianian caused such a general feeling of profound and sincers regret in Washington as that of Governor Hovey. The telegraph wires were prostrated in every direction from and immediately adjacent to Washington yesterday afternoon, and the sad news was not known here till this morning.

Governor Hovey impressed himself upon Washington and the cosmopolitan inhabitants here as has no other Hoosier in Congress. Although he served but one term be became not only personally well known to every member of Congress but also to most of those who had business before it, visitors and the officials at the executive departments as well. He was known to more veterans of the war than any one man who ever spent but two years at the Nation's Capitol. This acquaintance was not, however, due alone to the legislative measures he championed. His heart went out to the soldiers in amanseen in but few of his compeers. was the soldiers' friend, not selfish politics or personal grandizement, but because his whole soul was afire for them. General Hovey never missed an opportunity to speak and work before Congress committees, baving measures for the veterans under consideration, and the half of the work he did in behalf of the soldiers, their widows and orphans stituents. His best efforts and thoughts were for those with whom he served at the front from 1801 to 1865. He was one who never spoke of his endeavors for the defenders of the country. His personal and political interests were lost sight of. When General Hovey was last in Washington, to argue before Attorney-general Miller the interests of the State in the offset of the federal government in the Indiwhat he fervently believed is true, as we are morning at 10 o'clock, by way of the Van- and direct-tax refund matter, he received musical programme will be rendered. | staff on top of the White House was enapped |

He was proud of the fact that his efforts for humanity led persons to seek him out, and the results of his work moved many to ask his acquaintance, simply to thank him. It is not generally known, but is true, that one of the princito almost superhuman efforts in behalf of a universal pension law was his consuming detestation of the recognition given in civil life to military rank. and especially the discriminating rates made in pensions favorable to those who carried commissions instead of guns. He favored a pension of $8 a month to every one, irrespective of rank, who was entitled to such recognition on account of actual service. He has often said to me that it was his experience that the man in civil | lisle was not so great, but in the surroundlife who had been a commissioned officer | ing country it was very severe. The roof was, nine times out of ten, better able to do without any recognition whatever from the government in the way of a pension or otherwise than the one who carried a musket in the ranks could forego a small pension. He would prefer, he said, to grant a favor to a private than an officer in civil or military life, and yet he was a brigadier-general on the field of action. Hovey, late Governor of Indiana, who In Congress General Hovey's influence departed this life in this city on Monday, Nov. was powerful. He was so earnest and unselfish that his aims were always taken for just what they appeared to be on the surface. He hated the man who had ulterior purposes in his public acts. Thus the political possibilities of such a man as Gen. Hovey were almost limitless. Had he lived it was his purpose to present a measure to the present Congress revising the pension laws upon a basis so just to all that he declared the bitterest anti-pension advocate would be compelled to support it from a sense of duty.

Governor Hovey planned, in an evening's talk I had with him while he was here on his last visit, the scope of some new legislation which he intended to recommend in his last message to the Indiana Legislature. It was in the direction of lessening the taxation upon small farm-owners and catching the heavy holders of personal securities; of broadening the new election direction, but fell far enough short of the mark to leave a scar upon the principle involved; of improving rural highways and advancing the interests of labor. He had a plan for checking the practice of sending money and securities out of the State just before the April assessments and cheating the honest tax-payers by failure to return moneys in banks. Governor Hovey's next message to the Legislature would have given him more credit than most of his previous efforts in that direction, good as they have been. Indianians in Washington speak of Gov. Hovey's successor to the State's executive chair in the strongest praise. They anticipate for Governor Chase a most successful administration. He has shown his executive ability and Republicanism to their satisfaction as Lieutenant-governor. PERRY S. HEATH.

IT IS NOW GOVERNOR CHASE,

He Will Follow Closely the Policy of H Predecessor-Taking the Oath of Office. The personal elevation to a high office, by reason of Governor Hovey's death, makes Governor Chase no less a sincere mourner for his dead friend. "I was about to enter the pulpit of a church at Bowling Green, O., when I was handed the message informing me of the Governor's death, and summoning me to return to Indianapolis. It was a heavy shock, and it was with the greatest difficulty I could speak at all. It was impossible to proceed until I had informed the congreof what had happened and in as appropriate a manner as I knew how, to pay a tribute to the memory of Governor Hovey. I took the first train to the city and arrived at 10 o'clock this morning.

"What were your impressions of the Governor?" was asked. "I found him a man of the most unwavering fidelity to his convictions. He despised a hypocrite. While I do not know what his church preferences, if he had any, were, I know that he believed thoroughly as he believed in everything, in God, the divine being. In official life, he would tolcrate not the slightest presumption of un due influence. He once told me of a lady who visited him in behalf of a pardon for a relative. She made a remark which abruptly ordered her out of his presence. It was a remark that, perhaps, may have meant more than the lady intended, but its remote suggestion was enough to excite the displeasure of Governor Hovey's honest

"Will you attend the funeral?" "It is the request of the Governor's famiy that I do so, and I will do anything that may please them on such an occasion.

"What of your official duties?" "We will return and be ready for work by Friday. Mr. Roberts will continue as private secretary, and no changes of any sort will be made in the personnel of the office. As to policies, I shall aim to follow out the line followed by Governor Hovey as nearly as it is possible to learn it. I believe the people of Indiana desire no change on this score. I think Governor Hovey's administration was generally sat isfactory. I know it was to me. It would at any rate be wise, I believe, to defer to his age, wide experience and ability in directing the affairs of the State. As soon as the business which has accumulated during the period of sickness and the rites following the Governor's death, is cleared away, I will take up the consideration of what is to be done in the more general features of my new duties.

"You will now be able to do less pulpit work?" was asked. "Yes. I cannot now give as much time to ministerial work as formerly, except, perhaps, on Sunday. I accepted the office with all its contingencies, and I believe

And a Large Number of Their Occupants Fatally or Seriously Injured-Damage in Pennsylvania, Maryland and Washington.

PITTSBURG, Nov. 24.—Reports of damage done by yesterday's storm are coming in from all directions. In the Cumberland valley the damage done will reach many thousands of dollars. The damage at Carof the Graham school building was blown eighty feet into a field and a number of pupils received serious injuries. The following are the injured, as far as can be ascertamed: Miss Bertha Rudy, a teacher, timbers; Sallie Fisher, left side of face cut by falling glass; Lewis Wilson, nose broken by falling bricks and timbers; Jonas Gills, no hope for glory on the battle-field. The face cut. Seven or eight others were motives which actuated him upon entering | slightly hurt. During the storm the Sunnyside school-house, near Carlisle, was and other influence, he said; a private blown down and a number of pupils injured, the teacher having her leg broken. Medical aid was immediately summoned to the scene of the disaster.

At Coultersville, a few miles above Mc-Keesport, a farmer lad, named Bailey, about fifteen years old, was crushed under a falling building, and when taken from the ruins was dead. At Hyndman, Pa., on the Baltimore & Ohio ratiroad, a mill and church were demolished by the wind, but as far as could be learned no one was injured. At Cumberland, Md., several roofs were lifted from the houses and a number of people are reported as injured. At Braddock great damage was done to the manufacturing concerns. The Pittsburg Wire Company will lose several thousand dollars by the blowing down of part of its factory walls. The mill was to have been ready for operation in a fortnight, but of Carnegie's Homestead Steel-works was Enroofed and much damage done to the machinery. Several unfinished buildings north of Copeland were blown over. Sharon, Pa., reports the worst blizzard in years. Six inches of snow, drifted, prevented the regular trains from getting through last night.

In Westmoreland the storm was the worst ever known. Down the southwest road, at Munker's station, the sheds of the new brick-works were demolished and eight workmen injured, but none fatally, The loss to the company will reach $1,200. At United, on the Youngwood branch, the end of the engine-house was blown in and six of the employes badly hurt, one of them having both arms and both legs broken, besides sustaining other mjuries which will prove fatal. At Latrobe the Monastery bus-driver was badly injured while on the way to Beatty station for a load of passengers. The covered wagon was carried for a considerable distance by the storm and torn to shreas. The driver, Alex. McAleer, was buried down over a steep embankment and seriously hart. Near Connellsville several Italian laborers took shelter in a stable, when it was blown down and the men buried under the debrie. Constantio Larocte was fatally crushed, but the others were not seriously hurt. The gale ended to-day and the weather is growing cold. Communication by telegraph was restored in all directions, and business is once more resuming its normal condition. The damage by the storm in western Pennsylvania, eastern Ohio and West Virginia will reach several hundred thousand dollars.

A church at Hecia, Pa., was blown down on a number of children who had sought refuge from the storm. John Barner and Elias Dinkel were fatally injured and several others seriously hurt. The storm damaged property at Punxsutawney to the extent of $30,000. Among the buildings destroyed is the Cumberland Presbyterian

Lost in the Chilhowie Mountains. KNOXVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 24.-It was reported yesterday that a number of immigrants had been frozen in the Chilhowie mountains. It was learned to-day that the immigrant train consisted of six wagons and thirty-three persons. The latter part of last week a number of weil-to-do farmers and their families, who resided in Cherokee county, North Carolina, decided to go seemed indecorous for him to hear, and he | West. They disposed of all their landed possessions and household goods and started on their journey westward. Everything progressed pleasantly until late in afternoon it commenced snowing and blowing at a terrible rate. The men, women and children, with the exception of a farmer named George Akers, who was somewhat intoxicated, went into camp. Akers persisted in going through the storm, and said he would not stop until he reached the mountain-top. Monday morning, when the other members started toward Knoxville, they traced Akers and his wagon a few miles and then lost all track of them. The supposition is that the foolbardy farmer and his family either lost their way and rolled into the Rushing up the bay and harbor from the southeast at the rate of fifty miles an hour, it lashed the wates into foam, and waves fifteen feet high dashed around the ferry-boats and over the decks, while the passengers huddled together in fright in the cabins. Outside Sandy Hook the cyclone paid its attention to the incoming vessels. Nearly all had to wait until the storm spent itself. The cyclone played havoc with the telegraph wires. The storm was the most severe this section and the entire westerly line south has experienced this year. The winds are still high and threaten to be stronger, with the temperature at freezing point.

Reports continue to come in from many points of destruction wrought yesterday At Staunton, Richmond and Clifton Forge. a., buildings were unroofed, and at Raleigh, N. C., two boys were probably fatally injured by falling trees. New Jersey and New York towns also report considerable damage.

A Terror While It Lasted. BALTIMORE, Nov. 24.—The storm yesterday afternoon was a terror while it lasted. In the harbor there was a caldron of boiling water for a few minutes, and every vessel felt the gale to a greater or less extent. At anchor off Henderson's wharf was the large New Haven schooner W. W. Converse, which dragged her anchor and cut a swath through the oyster fleet, taking with her one here and another there, until when she brought up she had several under her portquarter. In her flight the Converse carried away the foremast and broke the mainboom of the schooner Holland Point. The tug Easby got the Converse out of her tangle and the smaller vessels were extricated. Several of the oyster vessels drifted into wharves on the Canton side of the barbor.

Loss of Life at Washington. WASHINGTON, Nov. 24.-The wind-storm and cloud-burst yesterday lasted ten minutes, but left a track of awful destruction. George White, a fashionable ladies' tailor, was crushed to death, and one of his workwomen also killed, besides six girls in the establishment being dangerously injured. will hold a union consecration service at | Ida White, the dead man's daughter, had a leg broken. Nine iron-workers on the Metzroit building had a marvelons escape and a colored hod-carrier who was working with them is missing. He is supposed to be buried under the debris. About two tons of stone coping was blown from the top of the White House onto the porch on the east side, c asting it in, and the flag-

Dyspepsia

Makes many lives miserable, and often leads to self destruction. Distress after eating, sick headache, heartburn, sour stomach, mental depression, etc., are caused by this very common and increasing disease. Hood's Sarsaparilla tones the stomach, creates an appetite, promotes healthy digestion, relieves sick headache, clears the mind, and cures the most obstinate cases of dyspersia. Read the following:

"I have been troubled with dyspepsia. I had but little appetite, and what I did eat distressed me, or did me little good. In an hour after eating I would experience a faintness or tired, all-gone feeling, as though I had not eaten anything. Hood's Sarsaparilla dld me an immense amount of good. It gave me an appetite, and my food relished and satisfied the craving I had previously experienced. It relieved me of that faint, tired, all-gone feeling. I have felt so much better since I took Hood's Sarsaparilla, that I am happy to recommend it." G. A. PAGE, Watertown, Mass. N. B. Be sure to get only

off. A window on the East room was also blown in. The total loss will be at least Twenty-Six Hours in the Water.

CLEVELAND, O., Nov. 24 .- Four fishermen-Nicholas Shedson. John Schenck, George Seigman and Ira Craven-had a thrilling experience in Lake Erie, near Lorain, yesterday and last night. They went out to their nets yesterday morning. Their sail-boat capsized and was carried away from them. Each man then swam to a pound net stake and lashed himself to it. They remained in that position for twenty-six hours exposed to the heavy seas that broke over them. They were rescued this morning, near dead from cold and exposure. One man said his suffering during the night was so terrible that if he could have reached his knife he would have cut his throat.

Timber Stolen from Government Land. GUTHERIE, O. T., Nov. A .- The timber inspectors have discovered $7,000 worth of timber being shipped to market which had been stolen from government land. Prominent men are implicated and a big scandal will follow.

TERRIBLE ITCHING

Used Everything Five Months. In Three Weeks not a Scar or Pimple. Cured by Cutteura.

When my baby was three months old his cheeks and forehead began to break out with white pim ples on red surface. In a few days itching commenced, which was terrible. After he would rub it, matter would coze from the points. In a short time it spread over the top of his head, then scabs soon formed on head and face. We used everything we could bear of for nearly five months. It grew worse all the time. I saw your advertisement of the Cuticura remedies in the "Chicago Weekly." We purchased Cuticura Remedies and commenced their use. In three weeks' time there was not a sore or pimple, not even a scar, on head or face. He is nineteen months old now, and has no signs of the disease. His scalp is healthy, and be has MRS. OSCAR JAMES, Woodston, Kan.

My infant, eighteen months old, was afflicled with skin eruptions on his hips. Bad sores came on other parts. All remedies failed until I procured Cuticura. Cured a year and no return of disease. Mrs. A. M. WALKER,
